Faith and the Human Condition

A topic of interest to me personally is the concept of Faith. Any of you might say, "sure, 'isn't that your area of expertise' and you being a priest!!!" I might cheekily reply, that faith is an area of interest to every person because it pertains to every individual and our quality of life. Faith is a Human Universal, every person has faith, of some sort. So, faith is not a topic confined within the reserve of religion and religious topics.

I touch on the subject, once again, as we welcome children who are preparing to receive Communion for the first time this coming April / May. They will lead us in prayer during the Pre-Communion Masses next weekend. A phrase I often use at a Christening is the hope that the 'child will come to be at home within himself or herself.' In other words, during their formative years the young person will learn the skills, wisdom, communitive skills, etc.; essential capacities that help a person be at home in this world of ours. Children coming for Communion with the local Christian Community, are already well on their way to acquiring these skills.

From a totally different angle, but somewhat related, I refer to an interview Bob Geldof gave on radio two weeks ago. When speaking about grief and bereavement he said:

*'My soul demanded love.
Life without love is meaningless.'*

Then he quoted the final line from the poem An Arundel Tomb by Philip Larkin:
'What will survive of usis love.'

A statement that came my way during my years of seeking, observing, wondering, experiencing, trying to make sense of 'what's it all about' is a quite simple statement; 'The faith journey is a life long journey'. What the statement says to me is that, as I make my way through life, year after year, very little remains the same, people around me change, society, culture changes, patterns of life changes, and in the process, I change myself, at many levels; physically, emotionally, intellectually, spiritually, all of which have to do with feeling secure, grounded. It's interesting that the symbol for Faith is the Anchor. It is a good symbol, it denotes an element of assurance, reliance, especially during times of threat or danger. But I hasten to say, that faith is much more than that. It's not just a quality that's related to security. It also has to do with 'quality of life'.

So, what it is? It's not a thing. You can't throw it away, put it in your pocket, lose it. Perhaps the best word to use in describing faith, is that it is a quality that dwells within a person, nebulous, but real. We could say the same about love, that it is very real, but hard to quantify.

James Fowler, who wrote the well-known book Stages of Faith. describing faith says that:

*Faith is a quality of the person.
Faith is a quality of human living.
At best it has taken the form of serenity
and courage and loyalty and service:
a quiet confidence and joy
which enable one to feel at home in the universe,
and to find meaning in the world and in one's own life,
a meaning that is profound and ultimate,
and is stable no matter what may happen to oneself
at the level of immediate event.*

Something that helps us feel secure in the universe, obviously is acquiring a certain wisdom, and a confidence in myself and my life journey. This wisdom, obviously has to grow, develop, form within my being. It is influenced from the earliest of times, by those who care for me, hold me, help me develop basic skills. My faith is nurtured through the living, and the quality of my living, faoi scath daoine eile, (in the shadow of other people). Think of the learning that happens within a child, by just playing with other children, being with adults, finding out how to do things, etc. It is also influenced by certain values I take to myself, from observing other people, especially people I admire and respect.

Because the way my faith is nurtured by so many factors and influences, I can say indeed that the Faith Journey is a life long journey, from the cradle to the grave. Even for seniors, with issues surrounding health, etc, the quality of my Faith can be severely challenged and in the process is influenced, reconfigured.

Next week I will stay with the same topic, and touch on Religious Faith.

Fr. Michael

Ministry of Catechist and the Permanent Diaconate - Would you be interested in serving in the Ministry of Catechist or the Permanent Diaconate in the Dioceses of Clonfert, Galway, Kilmacduagh and Kilfenora?

As part of a dynamic and creative team, in union with priests, deacons, parish pastoral councils and others, catechists assist with the delivery of various faith development programmes and opportunities at both parish level and beyond. Permanent Deacons are ordained to a life of service in charity to the poor, the vulnerable and the marginalised. They also provide a ministry of the Word in preaching in Church and officiating at certain liturgies, and Ministry of the Altar, in assisting the celebrant at Mass and preparing people for and officiating at Baptisms and Weddings. Both the Ministry of Catechist and the Permanent Diaconate involve a sizeable period of discernment and formation. For a conversation and further information please contact Fr Hugh Clifford, Tel. 091 637154.
Email catechistsdeacons@clonfertgalway.ie before 4th March 2026.
